Bardsley War Memorial Oldham

An upgrade to the surface surrounding Bardsley War Memorial was carried out by Didsbury Garden Services. The previous surface was of sand and became difficult to traverse in wet weather. The client wanted a porous surface that was smooth to walk on and could accommodate the annual service held on Remembrance Day. LeesonBound was installed for its SUDS properties which allows the water to drain through, and for its longevity, durability and reputation of good quality.

The Latin cross is set on an octagonal plinth with two octagonal steps. The names on the sides of the plinth are in black lettering. They include Private Frederick Finucane who was one of the youngest casualties at only 15 when he died on 27th November 1914 in Egypt and was buried at the Cairo War Memorial Cemetery. Exactly one year later his brother, John, was killed in Gallipoli and is buried in Manchester cemetery.
